*Chapter 1*: Sun Wars

Okay, this story came to be by me writing a review for another story noting how there were no stories poking fun at Amiti being Alex's love child. So I decided I would jump the wagon and write one in like 10 minutes. FYI, I am a livid Star Wars fan. Just writing this makes me want to watch the movies. I hope you guys enjoy this as much as I enjoyed writing it.

Disclaimer: I do not own Golden Sun or Star Wars. This is a fan made story with no intent on selling it for profit. Just a little fun.

The clanging of sword echoed down the long, metallic hallway of the Tsuparang aircraft. Matthew and his gang had successfully infiltrated the aircraft to rescue Matthew's father from his capture. Along the way, Amiti had run into Alex, the mastermind behind everything. All the pain and suffering they had gone through. Amiti told the others to go on ahead while he held off Alex.

And that's where the two began a long sword fight in which the end was no end in sight.

Alex was holding his own very well, but Amiti was beginning to show signs of tiredness. They had been going at it for a while. Alex began to back Amiti into a corner till his foot was just over the edge of the platform that dropped to the world below.

The wind blew violently causing Amiti to almost slip and fall to his death. Alex smirked at his close victory at hand. He advanced towards Amiti brandishing his sword at him. He took a quick swing to end it, but Amiti held his footing and blocked the attack as they linked swords.

Amiti stared into the cold blue eyes of the man who murdered his father. His uncle told him long ago that a man with long blue hair came and murdered his father a day before he was born causing his mother to die in grief from his loss. Now, it was the time for revenge.

Now, Amiti was finally going to take the life of the man who took his life away before he was even born.

"You... You monster! You killed my father and now I shall kill you!" He screamed.

Alex began to chuckle and then broke into a roaring laughter.

"No. You got it all wrong Amiti. I didn't kill your father." Alex grinned from ear to ear.

"Amiti. I AM your father!" He exclaimed.

Amiti took a moment for it to sink in before letting out a high pitch No! Alex broke off their stance and slashed his sword at Amiti's arm causing a severe gash to form on his right wrist. Amiti weakened and in shock, fell off the platform to the world below.

Spiraling and spiraling to his sudden death, Amiti let out a final thought.

Karis... I have always loved you.
